STRIKE ILLEGAL, TELEGRAPHS MINERS NATIONAL OFFICERS

Return to Work, President White and Others of Board Instruct

MAY BE SIGNAL TO RESUME

Believes Miners of Monongahela Valley Will Now Be Content to go to Work—Panhandle and Other Mines Now Operating.

"Your strike is illegal." This in effect is what international officers telegraphed to the miners of the Pittsburg district this morning and added a little timely advice that they return to work without delay. The message was received by President Van Bittner at the Pittsburg offices.

The message, signed by John P. White, president of the United Mine Workers of America; Frank J. Hayes vice president and William Green, secretary-treasurer, dated at Indianapolis, Ind., read as follows:

"District Executive Board of District No 5, we regard stoppage of work by miners of the Pittsburg District as illegal and instruct them through you to resume work immediately."

Possibly 50 per cent of the mines in the Pittsburg District are now operating, but comparatively few of these are in the Monongahela valley. Along the Panhandle many mines are working and the Ellsworth branch mines are continuing. The Lilley mine of the Lilley Coal and Coke company is starting.

It is believed the message will be the signal for a general resumption of work. Conservatives have not been in sympathy entirely with the movement to quit and have been ready for days to return to work. Many of the radicals are holding out. In the upper Monongahela valley the Crucible mines are working with 250 men, the Denbeau with 150, the Besco mine of the Bessemer Coke company is starting up with about 50 miners and the William Pitt Coal company is operating a small mine on Ten Mile. These mines have not been affected by the district trouble. The Charleroi mine is out but a resumption there is hinted.

POLICE ANSWER RIOT CALL AND FIND WOMEN ENGAGED IN SPAT

Excitement Rages in Hill District Near Third Street—Mere Man Gets Hurt in the Melee

A riot call was received from the Third street district on the hill by the police at 8:30 o'clock Wednesday night. Upon hastening to the scene they discovered a disagreement between women had caused excitement until there were threats going back and forth in lively way. Already three persons, including one man, the husband of a principal, had received injuries. The police stopped the uproar and secured the names of several who had been too free at calling names, pulling hair and engaging in other diversions of an exciting nature. They will be given their hearing tonight at 7 o'clock before Burgess S. L. Woodward and more excitement is anticipated.

FIFTEEN MILLS IS TAX LEVY OF NORTH CHARLEROI BOROUGH

Total is Same as Last Year, But There is a Different Arrangement For Special Purposes

Fifteen mills is the tax levy for the year at North Charleroi council having fixed the millage at the same total as last year, only with a slightly different arrangement. Last year the division was 10 mills for general purposes and five mills for sinking fund requirements. The arrangement this year will devote 14 mills to general purposes and one mill to sinking fund requirements.

Together with the passage of the ordinance setting the tax levy in the borough an ordinance was passed fixing the methods for appeals.

WANTS TO LIVE NOW SHE SAYS

Woman Who Took Bichloride Claims She is Sorry—Wish May be Gratified

SAYS MAN IS NOT WORTH IT

Anxious to live now is Mrs. Jessie Coyle Amos, a Monongahela young woman who last week attempted suicide by swallowing bichloride of mercury tablets because it is said a Charleroi young man with whom she had been keeping company had suddenly turned cold. "I am sorry now," she said at the Memorial hospital. The man is not worth it and I want to live." Reports att he institution are that if no unusul developments set in her wish to get well may be gratified.

According to the story that came out last week, Mrs. Amos took one bichloride tablet on Tuesday. It failed to produce the results she thought it would and on Wednesday she swallowed two more. Then she was placed immediately under the care of a physician and sent to the hospital. It was hardly thought that she could live However everything possible was done to save her ilfe.

The man in the case issaid to be a Charleroi bartender and unfortunately is said to have a wife already. It seems that there had been a love affair existing for some time between the two and that the past few weeks the man began to tire of Mrs. Amos, with the result that to her the only solution of her difficulties seemed the bichloride route.

SOME HEALTH CASES ARE ALREADY SETTLED

Arrangements Made By Some to Better Care for Refuse —Summons Prepared For Number to Appear Saturday Before Burgess

Settlement has already been effected in some of the health department cases being instituted as a means of stopping illegal dumping of rubbish and debris on private or public property except as provided by law. Health Officer William M. Darby, who isbe girning the campaign following numerous complaints reports that arrangements have been made by some to take better care of the refuse which has been finding its way to convenient dumping grounds at the edge of town.

Summons will be issued to some to appear before the burgess Saturday. Close to a half hundred business men and householders have been caught in the net.

What the present campaign may come to is a question. Probably it will result in a readjustment of garbage and refuse matters. There have been complaints that it is difficult for householders to get rubbish moved from their properties when they wish and there may be some delving into these complaints in an effort to reach a solution.

NEW STYLE OF BOAT MAY CHANGE RIVER COMMERCE

FARMERS SAY NIGHTS TOO COOL FOR CORN TO GROW

Difficult to Get Good Stand And Crop is Backward—Conditions Propitious for Wheat

Farmers are complaining that the nights are too cool for corn to grow right. There has been little warm weather this spring and for that reason the maize crop is backward. There was some trouble experienced in getting a good stand. Ground that is naturally damp has yellow stocks with little promise that the green will some soon. However, there is plenty of time yet for a good crop if from this time on the season is favorable.

The atmospheric conditions are propitious for wheat and grass and the grain fields and the meadows are coming fine. Oats and potatoes flourish under the prevailing weather.

Taking it all in all, where diversified farming is the rule, the tillers of the soil always have something to fall back on even if one or two crops are considered failures.

MOTORCYCLE IN WRECK; ONE HURT

Louis Tuccelli of Charleroi Injured When Machine Crashes Into Curb

LOST CONTROL IS THE CAUSE

Louis Tuccelli, a well known young barber of Charleroi had his foot badly crushed and C. G. Palma also a barber of Charleroi was injured a little when the motorcycle driven by Palma crashed into the curb along Schoonmaker avenue, Monessen this morning. Tuccelli was in the side car attachment and received the full force of the impact.

The accident was caused by the tearing out of a part of the handle bar. When this happened Palma virtually lost control of the machine. He reached for the spark plug and when he did this the machine headed for the curb.

Tuccelli was taken to a doctor's office where his injuries were dressed. His injuries are severe.

HAZEL-ATLAS COMPANY WILL MANUFACTURE ITS OWN GAS

Washington Concern Determines Not To Suffer in Winter Time From Lack of Supply

The Hazel-Atlas Glass company at Washington is preparing to erect a plant for the manufacture of fuel gas from coal as an auxiliary to its natural gas equipment. The supply of the latter failed several times last winter which has caused the company to decide upon the new source of fuel supply. The plant will have a capacity of 15,000,000 cubic feet of gas every 24 hours.

NEW STYLE OF BOAT MAY CHANGE RIVER COMMERCE

Self-Propelling Barge Tried on Mississippi and May be Brought Here

OIL USED FOR MOTIVE POWER

Old-Fashioned Fuel Proves Value—Directors of Company Report Successful Trips to Gulf and Return—Rivermen Watching Progress

River commerce promises to be revolutionized on the inland waters of the United States by the introduction of a new style boat, which made its appearance on the Mississippi rover a few days ago. The new boat is a self-propelling steel barge, capable of carrying 1,600 tons of freight, and is manned by a crew of 12 men. This boat is an oil burner and is capable of developing a speed of 16 miles per hour down stream. It has already made two round trips between St. Louis and New Orleans, carrying capacity cargoes each way, and its appearance has been hailed with pleasure by the merchants and shippers along that river.

For a number of years efforts have been made to supplant the stern-wheel steamboat, to which people have become accustomed, but no headway was made in that direction until the building of this self-propelled steel barge, which is now in commission on the Father of Waters.

It is the intention of the directors of the company which built this barge to construct others and to broaden their line of trade to embrace the Ohio and its tributaries, with a possibility that some day such a boat will be seen on the Monongahela.

The rivers of this country furnish fine avenues of commerce, and with such a boat as noted above in commission there is no reason why a large and profitable trade could not be developed.

River commerce is at a low ebb at the present time, but it has not passed away forever. In Europe the waterways are utilized to their capacity and the same thing, it is believed by river trade enthusiasts ultimately will occur in this country. The government has spent millions of dollars in improving the waterways of the country and is prepared to spend millions more, they say, and it is not to be supposed that all these improvements will be allowed to remain in idleness when it is possible to develop profitable transportation business thereon. The coming of this new style boat may mean the rejuvenation of river commerce, which has been lagging for so many years, but which was simply waiting for the introduction of more modern means of transportation in order to take its proper place in the business of the nation.

GASOLINE AS A BY-PRODUCT

It is interesting [illegible] spared [illegible] harmful [illegible] and a scarcity [illegible] general [illegible] lives. In the time of the early oil lamp, many [illegible] the poorly refined oil, and every effort was made to increase the yield of high-flash kerosene and remove for this [illegible] This gasoline was then little more than a waste product to be disposed of when possible or thrown away and allowed to evaporate [illegible] into the rivers with the resultant danger of fire. Now all is changed and the utmost effort of the chemist and engineer is called for to devise means of increasing the yield of his despised by-product at the expense of the higher boiling fractions in the crude oil. The government takes part in the research to meet the situation and even legislation is asked for to assist in regulating the supply and demand—Metallurgical and Chemical Engineering.

MILITARY TRAINING.

Among the multitudious enactments of the recent session of the New York Legislature is one that may be termed a piece of pioneering worthy of more than passing notice, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. It establishes compulsory military training for school boys between the ages of 16 and 19. The measure is described as "by far the most comprehensive preparedness measure which has achieved a place on the statute books of the states of the nation." There is no threat or peril of militarism in the proposal, but merely a decent acknowledgment of the fact that if a nation is to be able in an emergency to defend itself against the aggressions of another people trained in the horros of modern warfare, it must possess a body of citizens who have at least some elementary conception of the exactions of military service. Compulsory military training to some may sound harsher than it is in reality. The normal American boy is certain to enjoy it and get physical and mental advantage from it. Neither their parents nor the state have anything to fear.

AN ORIENTAL ENIGMA

Yuan Shi Kai was a puzzle to the western world. Some estimates credited him with a sincere aim to do what was best for China. Others just as positively held him to be nothing but a self-seeker, pointing as proof to his virtual nullification of the republican form of government set up by Dr. Sun Yat Sen and his attempt to make himself emperor. But there is general agreement on his ability. No doubt, before the European war, he had the support of the great Powers because he seemed the one man who could preserve a semblance of order in China and protect foreign interests. Actually he has been a dictator rather than President of a republic and had his European friends had their hands free he might have restored the monarchial form with himself as emperor and founder of a new dynasty in place of the deposed Manchus, maintains the Pittsburg Dispatch.

Chinese opposition to this ambition and Japanese aggression taking advantage of Europe's preoccupation made his tenure of office increasingly difficult. The revolt of the southern provinces which led in the overthow of the Manchus and the establishment of the republic was growing daily. Japanese encroachments humiliated Chinese pride and Yuan was blamed for not checking them. His abandonment of his dreams of empire came too late to do him any good and rumors of his resignation have been frequent. It is significant that Li Yuan Hang, Vice President and general in chief, who succeeds him, opposed his plan of restoring the monarchy and only rejoined him when he gave it up. The new President it is understood, will be acceptable to the revolted provinces and may be able to reunite the country on a republican basis.

Yuan's death, following reports of fears of poisoning, lends color to suspicion of a revival of Oriental methods of getting rid of undesirables. He is said to have succumbed to stomach trouble. Too little is known of his successor to estimate his qualities for the Presidency. If an admittedly strong man like Yuan failed it may be doubted whether Li Yuan Hang can bring order to China. But he may endeavor to establish a really republican form of government that will enlist the loyal support of China's best men.

BANK DEPOSITS AND CULTURE

Are bank deposits an indication of progress in civilization, culture and enlightenment? Of thirteen nationalities represented among Mr. Ford's employees, the Turks have the highest average deposits with $821 and the Americans the lowest with $204. The "Kultur" inference is difficult for the Germans excel the Canadians, Scotch, English and Irish, but are excelled by the Poles, Italians, Jews and Armenians—Pittsburg Gazette Times.

Garbage disposal has always been a big problem and now complications are threatened by the revelation that there has been wholesale dumping of rubbish on vacant ground within this and Speers borough limits, when the rubbish should have been incinerated at the garbage furnace. This cannot go on. There will have to be a stop put to it. It comes out too that the garbage furnace is a somewhat worn out plant that as a place to burn things its days are limited; also that it is difficult to get dumping space for waste, if it is possible to get it moved. The whole affair furnishes a warning that council may well heed. It is not going to be long now until other provisions will have to be made by the borough not only for disposing of its garbage, but also its sewage.

The movement of the Pennsylvania Railroad and other corporations to organize regiments among their employes finds an able second in the action of the American Sheet and Tin Plate mill to provide their employes with a month's vacation with pay should they desire to take training in soldiering at Plattsburg, N. Y. Both movements are to keep alive the spirit of preparedness and there isn't much doubt but that both answer the purpose insofar as possible. And all such things go toward preserving the peace of which liberty loving America is extremely fond.

JOSEPHUS.

Josephus was a lawyer once, he's not one any more, he has aviated somewhat, now in politics does soar; he's our Homeburg politician, he's the leader in our town, if you want to cop an office, if you're looking for renown, 'tis Josephus that can stake you—he can boost or queer your chance. It is he controls the voters, he who yodles—they who dance. Years ago in school we knew him. "Foghorn Joe," we called him then, never strong was he on learning—never handy with the pen; but orations—how he loved them, he could paw the air and shout, destined to become some lawyer, of that no one had a doubt. So his parents sent Josephus to a college there to learn how to read, expound, interpret laws of every crook and turn; to the bar he was admitted, proudly finished up his course, and could radiate some learning, talk for hours and not get hoarse. But he never put it over—as a lawyer he fell down, but in politics is heavy, he's the bear in our home town. Yes, Josephus as a lawyer was a failure and a bum, now he's making laws in congress—that forsooth is going some.

DAINTIES FOR TEA TABLE

Sandwiches of Many Kinds Are at the Command of the Hostess—Various Forms of Cakes.

Sandwiches of various kinds and dimensions are always a good beginning. Better have the loaf a day old, and sandwich bread, whose crumb is the best to make them with. Spread the butter on smoothly and add a thin layer of nut paste. The top slice will not need butter. Trim the crusts off and cut diagonally across. Even smaller sandwiches, making four out of the square, are large enough for the bite.

Finger rolls, very fresh, with a soft crust and a paste made of chicken mashed with the yolks of eggs boiled six or seven minutes, and just a little milk to make it smooth, are very appetizing. Graham bread, buttered and sliced the same as the sandwich loaf, spread with a mixture of jam and cream cheese, is very nice, too.

Meat minced very fine, with some milk to moisten it for smooth spreading, or thin slices of tongue with graham bread, makes good sandwiches.

Fresh Boston brown bread, mashed with cream cheese and sugar and made into balls, like butter, only smooth and larger, looks like great chocolate creams and makes a delicious titbit.

Meats that are potted and already minced into a paste for spreading of chicken, tongue and turkey make excellent sandwiches of white or brown bread.

If the sandwiches are made in the morning and intended for later use it is well to wrap each separately in paraffin paper. This will keep them soft and perfectly fresh until served.

Ginger nuts and cinnamon cakes have some snap to them, and macaroons and kisses are always ready at the baker's—if the busy housewife is too rushed to make them.

It is not necessary to have so many kinds of sandwiches or cakes, but a choice of two or three of those mentioned here will be sufficient. The finger rolls are especially attractive, as they can be daintily disposed of without removing the gloves.

For Luncheon.

Omelette with tomato sauce is a delicious dish for luncheon. Beat the yolks of four eggs until foamy, then add two-thirds of a cupful of milk, with which has been mixed a teaspoonful of flour, one-third of a teaspoonful of baking powder and a pinch of salt. Beat well together, then fold in the stiffly beaten whites and bake in a buttered pan in a hot oven.

For the sauce melt a tablespoonful of butter in a saucepan and fry in it until brown a small, finely chopped onion. Add a little of any small vegetables and a half a can of tomatoes rubbed through a sieve. Thicken with a table spoon of flour moistened to a smooth paste with a little cold water. Season with salt and pepper and cook for five minutes, stirring constantly. Pour over the omelette as soon as it comes from the oven and serve hot.

SOUR BEEF WITH DUMPLINGS

Recipe Which Will No Doubt Find Favor With Anyone Who Is Moved to Try It.

Put three to four pounds of beef (the round is best) in a bowl and pour over it sufficient vinegar to cover. Set aside for 24 hours, turning and basting frequently. Brown two large onions, chopped fine, in two tablespoonfuls butter. Place meat in roasting pan, pour over it the brown onions and the vinegar in which it was soaked; add a few cloves, a blade of mace and a bit of allspice. Bay leaves and lemon peel may be added if desired. When browned and thoroughly cooked the liquor should be strained and thickened either with flour or grated ginger snaps.

Potato Dumplings. — Cream a piece of butter the size of an egg, add yolks of two eggs, half cupful stale bread crumbs and a cupful of cold boiled potatoes; put through the ricer; season with salt and nutmeg, and, lastly, add the beaten whites of the eggs. Make into small dumplings and drop into the boiling liquor in which meat was cooked, and boil, closely covered, for ten minutes.

NO LONGER THE BOOTJACK

Day When That Implement Was in Use Has Passed Away for All the Time.

The other day a gentleman with pleasant recollections of old time custom, habit and social usage in American life, wanted a bootjack and tried to buy one, only to find that none could be bought.

It was a melancholy discovery for a man whose memory of other customs was lively and loving and indicated that the whole picture of American [illegible] If the bootjacks have gone, the boots must have, and the boots have done a whole range of [illegible]

[illegible] would bring them all back, the bootjack-less communities or where the day was begun by getting up to the cold and building a fire and was ended by pulling the bootjack and dragging the imprisoned feet out of stubborn boots.

The bootjack is the symbol of bad roads, flinty means of communication, community and family isolation, borrowed but healthy amusements, bad food, [illegible] mentally as ambrosial, bad taste in all the material circumstances of life which we now recall sentimentally as quaint.

The bootjack was one of the most highly complicated pieces of domestic mechanism, not many generations from this one, which lives by turning electric switches and pressing buttons.

HAD BROUGHT PA'S PRAYERS

Lad Conveyed Substantial Comforts for the Family of the Afflicted Pastor.

Once upon a time sickness came to the family of the poorly paid pastor of a country church. It was winter, and the pastor was in financial straits. A number of his flock decided to meet at his house, and offer prayers for the speedy recovery of the sick ones and for material blessings upon the pastor's family. While one of the deacons was offering a fervent prayer for blessings upon the pastor's household there was a loud knock at the door. When the door was opened a stout farmer boy was seen, wrapped up comfortably. "What do you want, boy?" asked one of the elders. "I've brought pa's prayers," replied the boy. "Brought pa's prayers? What do you mean?" "Yep, brought his prayers, an' they're out in the wagon. Just help me, an' we'll get 'em in." Investigation disclosed the fact that "pa's prayers" consisted of potatoes, flour, bacon, cornmeal, turnips, apples, warm clothing, and a lot of jellies for the sick ones. The prayer meeting adjourned in short order.—Omaha World-Herald.

Kill's Kitchen Odors.

One of the most useful applications of electricity about the household is a motor-driven exhaust fan for the kitchen. Attempt to ventilate this room by opening windows and doors is bound to fail, especially in the winter time. Without a ventilator the odors from cooking will penetrate the entire house and linger in the rooms long after the meal itself is gone. The motor-driven fan consists, as the name suggests, of a small motor attached to a powerful fan in an upper pane of a window, near the range. The device is mounted well toward the top of the room. The motor is attached to the lighting circuit and provided with a suitable snap switch for starting and stopping it. During the operation of cooking the switch is turned, and the fan forces out a steady stream of air, carrying with it all smoke, gases and objectionable odors.

RICHES TO BE DEVELOPED

Beds of Shale in Western States Will Yet Be Made to Yield Millions of Dollars.

Little attention has been paid to shale in this country because the quantity of petroleum produced from wells in the United States has been sufficient to satisfy all demands, but for more than fifty years the oil shale industry of Scotland has been a very important one. In a recent year more than 8,000 men were employed in the industry in that country, yet the average yield of oil per ton of shale was much less than that which appears possible from the shale of Colorado and Utah. It is estimated that in Colorado alone there is sufficient shale, in beds three feet or more thick and richer than the shale being mined in Scotland, to yield twenty billion barrels of crude oil, from which at least two billion barrels of gasoline may be extracted by ordinary refining processes. This shale contains materials which, when heated, may be converted into crude oil, gas and ammonia. The high cost of distilling oil from shale as compared to the cost of producing oil from wells has thus far prevented the development in this country of such an industry and may continue to prevent it for some time, but in due time this great source of supply will be utilized to supplement the decreasing production from the regular oil fields. The gas, which is a very good illuminating gas, will perhaps be sufficient to furnish all the heat required to distill the crude oil from the shale. Ammonia, a most valuable by-product of the distillation, may be utilized in the manufacture of commercial fertilizer or other nitrogen compounds, as the market demands.

Where the Games of Yesteryear?

I have wondered sometimes why the boys in the town where I live now never play marbles or spin tops. In the past five years I have not seen a single game of marbles or once heard the shrill request, 'Gimme a peg at yours.' It is not strange that the slingshot has vanished, for automobile tires use up all the available rubber. But why should tops and marbles vanish from the earth? They have gone the way of the delightful children's matinees at the old Boston Museum, no doubt, and the Kate Greenaway books, and the jackstones little girls used to toss by the hour, sitting on the front steps. It makes one feel middle aged and mournfully reminiscent. — From the Atlantic.

DOCTORS USING AMOLOX WITH GREAT SUCCESS

This remarkable letter, coming from a prominent physician engaged in active practice for over 25 years, proves the merit of this wonderful new Remedy.

I have used Amolox in fourteen different cases with excellent results. All showed marked improvement from the start. Two apparently are cured, the skin being free from scales and redness, and perfectly normal.

I consider Amolox a Remedy of rare merit. I know of nothing in the modern text-books that equals it in therapeutic value.

H. R. Hills, M. D., Youngstown, O.

Pimples on the face, Blackheads, Acne and all minor skin troubles yield quickly to the use of the Amolox Ointment. Sufferers of Eczema, Psoriasis, Tetter, Salt Rheum, and bad chronic cases of skin diseases lasting for two years, should use both the Ointment and Solution to effect a cure. Trial size, 50c. Guaranteed and recommended by Piper's Pharmacy.

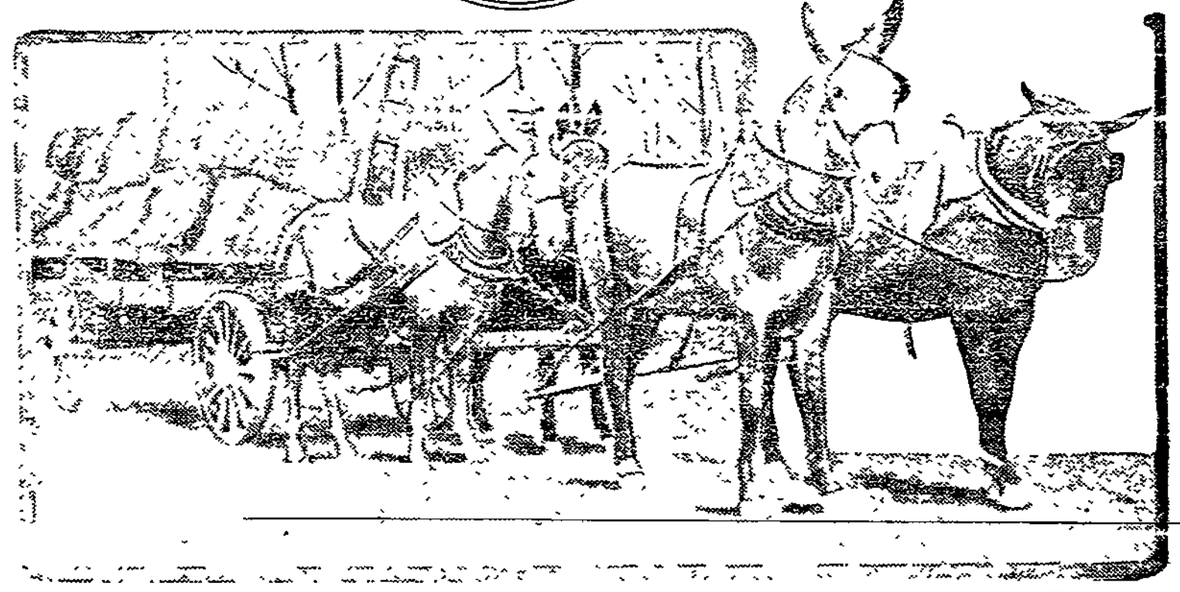
MULE VS MOTOR



To the observing tourist through the Cumberland Valley there are still many reminders of the Civil War.

Many of the substantial old farmsteads were raided again and again by Confederate cavalry on foraging expeditions. Prior to the battle of Gettysburg the Confederate troops marching up the valley took Chambersburg and Carlisle and threatened Harrisburg.

All of the mountain roads in the vicinity of the State Sanatorium at Mont Alto were traversed and retraversed by the soldiers of both armies.

Methods of transportation still in use at these institutions are, to the student, reminders of war-time days. The four-horse teams used for transport from Mont Alto station five miles up the mountain to the institution are identical with those which were used by the commissary department of the Union and Confederate armies.

Tons of foodstuff, coal, and general supplies must be transported over these roads to care for the small army of patients continually under treatment at the Mont Alto Sanatorium, and while Commissioner of Health, Samuel G. Dixon, has provided motor trucks and traction engines to do a portion of the work, the four-mule teams still do much of the hauling and are very largely used throughout that section of the State.

From One to Another.

A tribute by Homer T. Davies of Concordia: "The Kansan office was favored with a fine visit from Mr. W. C. Palmer, famous all over Kansas as the editor and brilliant paragrapher of the Jewell City Republican. Billy has but one fault—chin whiskers. He has but one diversion from strict attention to business—the annual conference of the Methodist church, of which he is a faithful and consistent member. Billy Palmer is, and has been, an inspiration to many an aspiring young newspaper man. He began his career as a newspaper man as a kid printer in the Republican office, when it was owned by the Mussers. He now owns the paper and the building where it is printed. He has stock in banks and other corporations in his home town. He lives in one of the swell homes of the town—and there's not a dirty dollar in all his possessions—and, better than all, he has the confidence and the respect of his fellow citizens. Billy Palmer has attained success in life."—Kansas City Star.

WOMEN CARE FOR HORSES

Scarcity of Man Workers in England Has Brought About a Peculiar State of Affairs.

A notable example of the utilization of female labor in war-time is afforded by three large military horse depots at Reading.

There is not a single man on any of the staffs, the work of attending to the horses being done by gentlewomen. Some of them have been brought up in Australian and Canadian horse-ranches, but most of them are members of the South Berks and other hunts. The depots are convalescent homes for army horses. They have been organized by Mr. Cecil Aldin, the sporting artist and a joint master of the South Berks hunt.

The fifty ladies working at the depots wear caps, short breeches, and gaiters. They meet the horses at the railway stations and do all that is necessary for their comfort, duly dispatching them from the railway stations when they are restored to health.—London Mail.

DENY EVER KISSING A GIRL

Forty Out of 200 Princetonians Think That Osculation Is Morally Wrong.

The senior statistics, with their usual jumble of fact, humor and fancy, have been announced. They show that of 230 men, 19 are supporting themselves wholly and 38 partially.

Vassar is the favorite girls' college.

The record-breaking total of 43 men declare they have never kissed a girl. Their inability to "swing it" is given as reason by most, but some consider it "unhygienic." While 160 deny it is morally wrong to kiss a girl, 40 think it is. This number contains 11 only who have never kissed. Thirty-five seniors do not correspond with girls; the others have various numbers of correspondents. Dancers number 194, while 36 consider dancing morally wrong.

The favorite dramatist is Shakespeare. George Bernard Shaw comes second.

Prof. George B. McClellan, once mayor of New York city, is favorite professor. Marguerite Clark is the favorite actress, and is followed by Elsie Ferguson, Martha Hedman, Mary Pickford, Maude Adams and Anita Stewart. John Barrymore and Charlie Chaplin head the list of actors, with Forbes-Robertson and Leo Dietrichstein following.—Princeton (N. J.) Dispatch Philadelphia North American.

STRICT ETIQUETTE IN KOREA

Practices That Seem Absurd in Western Eyes Are There Looked Upon as the Proper Thing.

A recent Washington dispatch declares that a good many changes have taken place in Korean manners and etiquette since the Japanese came into control.

A Girls' High school was established at Seoul in 1908, and the girls who were admitted, 54 in number, were the daughters of noblemen. The teachers were women at first, but as the needs of the school grew and became more exacting, a few male instructors were appointed. The community in general, and the pupils' parents in particular, were enraged, alleging that it was an unpardonable offense for men to enter the gate of a girls' school, if they were teachers.

The school authorities, therefore, made a concession that the male teachers should veil their faces when they passed the gate of the school. It is an absurd evasion, but the students' parents were satisfied with it. Some of the girls are attended by two or three chaperons, or maids, even when at their studies.—Youth's Companion.

Concrete to Hold Back Water.

Concrete will be extensively made use of in the future in the revetment work on the shores of the Mississippi river, taking the place of the willow mats which have been used for some time with considerable success. These mats are effective enough in protecting the banks against the action of the current, but they are difficult, tedious and time-consuming to weave and sink in place. The cement process has been developed by investigators of the United States bureau of standards; who have found that a four per cent addition of calcium chloride to the mixing water increases the strength of the concrete at the age of one day by 100 per cent or more. In some cases the strength of the concrete in which the calcium chloride was, at the age of two days, was 75 per cent or more of the strength normally attained in one month. This rapid hardening is what has made the concrete available for the work of confining the wandering Missouri river to its banks.

Novel Lighthouses.

Remote control light and fog signal stations, consisting of 500-watt incandescent lamps in lens lanterns and electric sirens, have been in successful operation at Point Blunt and Point Stuart, Angel island, California, since February 11, 1915, the United States bureau of lighthouses reports. The controlling station is at the keeper's dwelling, distant about one mile from Point Stuart and two miles from Point Blunt. An arrangement of magneto relays in conjunction with a telephone enables the keeper at the control station to open and close the siren circuit and to listen to the operation of the fog signal through the medium of a single wire.

Sir Herbert Tree Not a Lion.

At a recent reception at New York Sir Herbert Tree attended; a lady was reproaching the Shakespearean actor for not going into society more frequently.

"You ought to give us more opportunities to lionize you," she complained.

"I never heard of but one man," replied Sir Herbert, "who wasn't spoiled by being lionized."

"And he was?" suggested the fair inquisitor.

"He," finished Tree, "was Daniel."

Metal Wall Paper.

Thin metal plates, which weigh about four pounds to the square yard, are being used in France instead of plaster and wall paper. The Technical World magazine tells some of the advantages of using this material. It can be bought and placed in position at less cost than the old materials; the room can be kept at a more even temperature; workmen have little trouble in learning to use the new material.
